Plains Art Museum Hosts Free Gallery Talk with Prominent Landscape Photographers

Press Release

For Immediate Release (October 2018)

Fargo, N.D. – On Thursday, September 13th, Plains Art Museum opened a new photography exhibition titled, On Place: Three Views of the Land. The exhibition includes three of the region's most experienced and influential landscape photographers with a combined 140 years of experience: Stuart Klipper (MN), Drake Hokanson (WI), and Wayne Gudmundson (MN). The exhibition includes 45 works of the region's rivers, back roads, small towns, and landscape.

As part of this exhibition, the Museum is hosting a free gallery talk with the artists, facilitated by Museum Director, Andrew Maus, on November 8th at 6pm. The talk will provide insights into each of the artist's work, including their collaborative photo shoots of the Red, Mississippi, and Minnesota River environments.

After the talk, participants are invited to attend the Fall Exhibition Reception at 7pm, which is free for museum members, exhibiting artists and all Native American artists, $5 for students, and $10 for nonmembers.

Plains Art Museum is the largest art museum in the Dakotas and Western Minnesota. It is general admission free and educationally-focused thanks to strong and growing support from over 800 households and businesses. The Museum manages a permanent collection of over 4,000 objects, organizes and presents dozens of annual exhibitions, facilitates public art projects, and leads over 200 educational programs and experiences for all ages each year. The Museum, and its Katherine Kilbourne Burgum Center for Creativity, is located at 704 First Avenue North in downtown Fargo.
